Dear James Stewart, 4/18/95

I decided early on, correctly as it turned out, that I'd not be able to try to work in all areas of the case so I did little on Ruby and on the Tippit shooting to spend that time on the JFK case.

Therefore I cannot answer your questions about the ~~pi~~ revolver.

Although I do not know it seems possible that the revolver was a regular stock item for that store or house an thus they could get replacements supply before it ran out.

I am not aware of the postal regulations.

You should be able to get that cleared up by asking your local P.O.

As of my last knowledge the stores that look for sets of the 26 to sell have such long lists they are not adding to them.

The only way you ll be able to get a set is by luck. Keep and eye and ear alert because it is not uncommon for sets to be sold on deaths or because people need money.

They cost quite a bit now if people know the market on them

Sincerely,

Harold Oisberg
